

UNIVERSITY of ROCHESTER

IVAN A. SAG LECTURES

Some Concepts and Consequences of a Theory of Word Meaning
Professor John Beavers • The University of Texas at Austin, Linguistics

Bausch & Lomb Hall 109
University of Rochester
October 6/13/20 2023
12-2pm

Free & open to the public
Zoom reg. link:
bit.ly/Sag-23

Sponsored by the Center for Language
Sciences
sas.rochester.edu/cls/sag

The Center for Language Sciences at the University of Rochester is proud to announce the inaugural annual Ivan A. Sag Lectures.

The Sag Lectures commemorate the late Professor Ivan A. Sag, a University of Rochester alumnus who was one of the foremost language scientists, cognitive scientists, and linguists of his time.

The Sag Lectures are associated with the annual Sag Fellowship, a visiting fellowship that brings a leader in the language sciences to Rochester for an extended visit. The Sag Fellowship is also sponsored by the Center for Language Sciences.

The 2023 Sag Fellow is Professor John Beavers, Chair of the Department of Linguistics at UT Austin.

Professor Beavers will explore the topic of lexical semantics, in a series of lectures titled Some Concepts and Consequences of a Theory of Word Meaning.

Please join us for this first edition of the Sag Lectures, Fridays, 12-2pm (Rochester time), October 6/13/20 2023.